Rebecca Blair Bio

I am presently a student in the Equine Administration program at the University of Louisville. My minor is International Business, focusing on German. I have been riding and showing purebred Arabians in English disciplines for more than a decade. In 1998, I merited my first Regional Championship as well as a Top Five award. A few years later, I became a working student at an Arabian breeding farm. The owner and trainer was a student of Karl Mikolka and I learned much in the vein of classical horsemanship. Not long after, I bought my first rescue and rehabilitated him, taking lessons from a South African eventer and students of Centered Riding. At present, I train in southern Indiana with grand prix dressage rider Tamara Fifer. She also focuses on Arabian horses and was taught by students of the great Alois Podhajsky from the Spanish Riding School. I bought my first Shagya, Shandor's last daughter, from Adele Furby in 2009. Ms. Fifer and I have started the mare, Sara, using classical and natural horsemanship methods.
